HOYT IS DEAD.

Celebrated Playwright Victim
Of Paresis.

The End Came At His Home In Charlestown.

He Had Been Unconscious Since Monday Morning.

CHARLESTOWN, N. H., Nov. 20.—Charles H. Hoyt, the celebrated playwright, and a native of this town, died at his home here tonight, from paresis, with which he had been suffering for several months. Previous to two weeks ago, there had apparently been a slight improvement in his condition, although he had periods of depression. A fortnight ago, his appetite failed and he had a bad turn, from which he only partially recovered. He could take nothing but liquid nourishment. From then until yesterday he had failed steadily and yesterday morning he had a relapse, remaining unconscious up to the hour of his death. Mr. Hoyt was forty years of age.

(Charles H. Hoyt was famed for the long series of farce comedies which his busy brain produced and the prosperous runs attending each. Particularly notable for their popularity are A Temperance Town, A Brass Monkey, A Texas Steer, A Black Sheep, A Trip to Chinatown and A Milk White Flag. Mr. Hoyt's death in the prime of life was caused indirectly by the loss of his wife who, as Caroline Miskel, was one of the most beautiful women that ever appeared on the American stage. She took part in several of the Hoyt plays and her connection with them led to her union with their author. After her death, Mr. Hoyt seemed to lose his inspiration, his business acumen became blunted and not many months ago he gave signs of the dread disease which finally carried him off. The details of his commitment to a sanitarium, the storm of protest that arose from his friends, his release and removal to his home in Charlestown and the appointment of Hon. James O. Lyford as his guardian, are all fresh in the public mind.—E.L.)

FOSTER'S DEMOCRAT BURNED OUT.

DOVER, Nov. 20.—The plant and building of Foster's Daily Democrat, one of the oldest newspapers in the state and the leading publication in Strafford county, were badly damaged by fire early this morning.

The fire started in the basement of the building, which was of brick and four stories in height, and rapidly made its way to the roof by the elevator shaft, gutting the entire structure.

The building and equipment are owned by the heirs of the late Joshua Foster, under the firm name of George J. Foster and Co. The loss to the owners is estimated at $9000 and is partially covered by insurance.

The restaurant of Patrick Craigain and Freeman's oyster house, adjoining the Foster building, were considerably damaged by water.

Arrangements have been made by Foster and Co., to use the Free Press office at Somersworth for the publication of the Daily Democrat, while the plant here is being restored.

The cause of the fire is not definitely known.

BANK ROBBERS FOILED.

ASHLEY, OHIO, Nov. 20.—Eight men made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Ashley bank early today. After they had fired four charges of dynamite, shattering the outer doors of the building, a large crowd of citizens gathered. They were met by a fusillade of shots, but forced the robbers to retreat.

NOMINATED FOR MAYOR.

DOVER, N. H., Nov. 20.—At the democratic city caucus tonight, Hon. Frank E. Fernald was nominated for the mayoralty, to be supported at the municipal election on November 27th.

THE CHINESE ISSUE.

Allies Plan For Winter.

TIENTSIN, Nov. 18, (delayed).—General Humphrey of Chaffee's staff has returned from Shan-Kai-Kwan and reports favorably on the suitability of the place as a winter port. A pier will be built about eight miles below Shan-Kai-Kwan, at an expense of $200,000, to be divided equally among the allies.

Extending The Railroad.

PEKIN, Nov. 18, (delayed).—The allies are extending the railroad from Tientsin into this city. A station is being erected near the Temple of Heaven.

Marching To The Great Wall.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Field Marshal von Waldersee: "A detachment consisting of two companies of infantry and a force of mounted men, and two guns, has been despatched by way of Sarhien, west of Peking, with orders to push on to the Great Wall."

She Thirsts For Gore.

LONDON, Nov. 21, 2:00 A. M.—It is credibly reported (says the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, wiring his paper yesterday,) that the empress dowager has sent a secret decree to her viceroys and provincial governors, commanding them to be prepared for waging immediate war upon the foreigners everywhere in the empire.

Stronger Measures

LONDON, Nov. 21, 3:00 A. M.—"At last," says the Shanghai correspondent of the Post, wiring yesterday, "the allies have determined on stronger measures for bringing about a crisis. They have asked the viceroy of Nankin for a definite declaration from him regarding his proposed course toward foreigners and the forwarding of supplies."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Four hundred members of the Chamber of Commerce and invited guests enjoyed their annual banquet tonight at Delmonico's. Morris K. Jesup, president of the chamber, presided, and seated with him at the table of honor were Postmaster General Smith, Whitelaw Reid, Hon. Levi P. Morton, Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, Bishop Potter, Frank A. Vanderlip (assistant secretary of the treasury) Justice Patterson of the United States supreme court, St. Clair McElwain, Murat Halstead and other notables. The majority of these distinguished guests made addresses.

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the trustees of the Cottage hospital, recently held, resulted in the re-election of Rev. Henry E. Hovey and John S. Rand, president and treasurer, and the entire board of directors. The report of the treasurer showed that the permanent and endowment funds amount to $53,188.95. #### TO STARVE THEM OUT.

LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS, Nov. 20.—A posse of officers in pursuit of two escaped convicts, Cravens and Estel, have settled down for a siege near Brighton. The convicts are armed and desperate and are in a rough country, where they are shielded. The officers have surrounded them and will keep continuous guard until the convicts are starved out. The country is barren and there is no chance of their getting any food.

ROME, Nov. 20.—It is rumored that if his health permits and the circumstances otherwise are favorable, Pope Leo XIII will celebrate mass at midnight on the last day of the nineteenth century and give his benediction to the thousands of people who will be gathered within the basilica of St. Peter's at the coming of the first day of the twentieth century.

TO GREET KRUGER.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Mr. Kruger is expected to arrive at Marseilles on the Gelderland tomorrow and great preparations have been made for his reception. Immense crowds are leaving Paris to greet him when he lands. Special trains to Marseilles today have carried thousands.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 20.—The police and military are held in readiness for the arrival of Mr. Kruger and the Boer reception committee has made no change in the preparations for welcoming him at the dock. Workmen are busy erecting flagpoles along the waterfront. Until the former president of the South African republic comes ashore, not even his granddaughters, Mrs. Eloff, (who applied for permission to meet him on board the Gelderland, which is conveying him,) will be allowed to see him.

ADMIRAL ENDICOTT'S REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The annual report of Rear Admiral Endicott, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, makes estimates aggregating $12,456,390, of which $11,252,540 is for public improvements. Admiral Endicott emphasizes the importance of making a proper provision for the storing at convenient points along the coast of the large number of torpedo craft now building or completed. He says that several yards should be considerably increased in area, particularly that at Norfolk. The bureau recommends the improvement of the channels connecting the yards at Portsmouth, N. H., and Mare Island with the sea.

NEW YORK'S VICE CRUSADE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The vice crusade started by Tammany in this city will be to repress rather than suppress the existing evils. Captain Titus, the new head of the "Red Light" precinct, says his aim is to "drive vice to cover." He said today: "There was not a red light shining in the Eldredge street precinct last night and the people made no attempt to do business. We kept the women off the street. No one entered the suspected places without receiving a warning from my men."

BROWN IS STILL LOOSE.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20.—The experts who are at work on the books of the German bank at Newport, Ky., said tonight that they have so far found a shortage of $195,000 in the accounts of Frank M. Brown, the missing assistant cashier, and they are not yet through with their examination. There have been all sorts of reports today about Brown being seen in Indianapolis and other cities since he left town last Wednesday, but they are not believed here and his whereabouts are as much a mystery as ever.

ANNEX NEW CASTLE.

The Adjoining Town of New Castle
Ought To Be A Part Of Portsmouth.

The Present Session Of The Legislature
Ought To Pass Necessary Law.

The Citizens Should Push The Annexation Scheme The Coming Session.

Portsmouth ought to be a city of 40,000 and it would have been years ago if there had been more hard work and less kicking.

The time is once more ripe to give the city a great boom and all hands ought to take an interest in the work of making the only seaport what it ought to be—the metropolis of the state.

The town of New Castle ought to be a part of Portsmouth, as it is every way a part of the city in location and association. The town would be greatly benefited and the city would have an additional population of 500 at once. It would not be an expensive movement for the city and as it is so close to Portsmouth, modern improvements could be introduced at small expense, which would make the place more desirable as a summer resort, giving the hundreds of summer visitors what they have long desired, electric lights, high pressure water and police protection. There ought to be some action taken by the selectmen and city council looking to the immediate bringing about of the union.

Greater Portsmouth should be pushed and now is the proper time; and the representative to the legislature who secures the necessary legislation will have done his city a great service.

TO HUNT AGGIE.

MANILA, Nov. 20.—General Macabulos, the former Philippine chief, is ready to set out in pursuit of Aguinaldo, with one hundred picked native soldiers, supported by American troops. Other native fighters are prepared to enter the campaign with the Americans, if asked. Aguinaldo is supposed to be lurking in northern Luzon. Agtibay, the renegade native priest, has written to friends in Manila, asking them to inform him about the results of the election in the United States and also querying if any agreement has been reached between church and state and regarding the disposition of church property. In answer to the latter inquiry, he has been told that church and state have been separated and entire religious freedom is now allowed.

THE NEW DEFENDER.

Bristol, R. I., Nov. 20.—The first of the work for the new cup defender has been commenced at Herreshoff's, with the cutting of the sails which the yacht is to wear. It is understood that the new boat is to be built, rigged and have her sails bent by the second week in May. This would place her in commission five or six weeks earlier than was the case with the Columbia in 1899.

FAVORABLE TO THE TRUST.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The appellate division of the supreme court has handed down a decision in favor of the American Ice company.

This root of many evils—Glandular tumors, abscesses, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions, sore ears, inflamed eyelids, rickets, dyspepsia, catarrh, readiness to catch cold and inability to get rid of it easily, paleness, nervousness and other ailments including the consumptive tendency—Can be completely and permanently removed, no matter how young or old the sufferer.

Hood's Sarsaparilla was given the daughter of Silas Vernoor, Wawarsing, N. Y., who had broken out with scrofula sores all over her face and head. THE PAN-AMERICAN.
A GLANCE AT THE GREAT ENTERPRISE AND ITS PURPOSES.
True Picture of Nineteenth Century Development Arranged in a Setting of Unsurpassed Beauty and Splendor at Pan-American Exposition.
If one may judge by the presence of thousands of workmen at the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition and the wonderful progress they have made during the last few months, the Exposition will be opened in a condition of completeness upon the 1st of May next.
For the benefit of those who, for any reason, have not been informed concerning the plans and purposes of this vast enterprise I will state that the Exposition grounds are in the northern part of the city of Buffalo and have an area of 350 acres. Buffalo, with its 400,000 population, is preparing the most artistic creation ever produced for the purposes of an exposition. The completed work will cost probably $10,000,000, exclusive of exhibits.
The landscape upon which the buildings stand includes a part of one of the most beautiful parks in Buffalo or in fact, in the world. The Exposition will thus have the setting of trees, lawns and water features, which have cost the city of Buffalo millions of dollars. The main Exposition buildings are some 20 or more in number and are arranged about a system of beautiful courts some 33 acres in extent. The arrangement is such as to permit the most exquisite decorative effects that the best trained artists of the world may be able to produce.
Space will permit only an enumeration of the principal buildings. These are: The Electric Tower, 375 feet high, which is to be the centerpiece of the most brilliant and novel electric illumination ever conceived; the Propylaeum, or architectural screen, at the northern end of the grounds; the Stadium, for sporting and athletic events; the Agriculture building, Manufactures and Liberal Arts building, Ethnology building, the Government group of three great buildings, the Midway restaurant building, Electricity building, the Machinery and Transportation buildings and Railroad Station, the Temple of Music, Graphic Arts, Horticulture, Mines, Forestry, Dairy, Ordnance, Service and other buildings, the Albright Gallery of Art, costing $100,000; the New York State building, costing $175,000, besides the state and foreign buildings and numerous other structures of beautiful and interesting design for a variety of purposes.
The Midway at the Pan-American Exposition alone will cost more than some large expositions. It is estimated the cost of the Midway will be about $3,000,000, as it will have more than a mile of frontage closely built with the most picturesque structures conceivable and will contain between 30 and 40 entertainment features of most novel and interesting character.
The purposes of the Exposition are not merely to give the people a most magnificent and attractive entertainment, but it will furnish the opportunity for every one to inform himself upon the progress of the nineteenth century. The Exposition is held for the purpose of celebrating the achievements of the western world during a century of unparalleled progress. It is distinctly a western world affair, all the governments of the western hemisphere having been invited to participate in all departments. Official responses have been made by every important government, state and dependency of the western world, and they are preparing to be represented by most creditable exhibits.
The exhibits are classified in the following divisions: Electricity and electrical appliances; fine arts, painting, sculpture and decoration; graphic arts, typography, lithography, steel and copper plate printing, photo mechanical processes, drawing, engraving and bookbinding; liberal arts, education, engineering, public works, constructive architecture, music and drama, sanitation and hygiene; ethnology, archaeology, progress of labor and invention, isolated and collective exhibits; agriculture, agricultural implements; machinery and appliances, foods and their accessories, horticulture, viticulture, agriculture, forestry and forest products, fish, fisheries, fish products and apparatus for fishing; mines and metallurgy, machinery, manufactures, transportation, railways, vessels, vehicles, ordnance, exhibits from the Hawaiian Islands, Porto Rico, Guam, Tutuila and the Philippine Islands.
The Exposition has the endorsement not only of the state of New York, which appropriated $200,000, but of the national government, which appropriated $500,000 for the purpose of being suitably represented upon this great occasion. The Exposition will continue six months and will furnish an opportunity such as rarely comes for the public to take note, at a glance, of the wonderful progress of the western world. It will be like a great university, at which the young and old will become for the time being students of western civilization.
About 12,000 people have subscribed to the stock of the Exposition, and it is a public enterprise in the broadest sense of the term, the aim being to produce a magnificent spectacle to delight the artistic sense of all who attend and to present through the medium of an array of enterprising exhibitors a true picture of nineteenth century development. John G. Milburn, an eminent lawyer of Buffalo, is president, and the director general is William L. Buchanan, who was director of the departments of agriculture, live stock and forestry at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago and afterward for six years United States minister to the Argentine Republic.
MARK BENNETT.
"PAN-AM." RESTAURANTS.
The Best of Service Will Be Provided.
The needs of the inner man will be well attended to at the Pan-American Exposition to be held at Buffalo from May 1 to Nov. 1, 1901. At some expositions a great mistake has been made by not providing for good restaurants, where satisfactory meals could be obtained at reasonable prices. Either the food obtained has not been of good quality or prices charged have been exorbitant or the facilities in some particulars have been inadequate to the occasion.
There will be good restaurants in different parts of the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition, so that it will not be necessary for visitors to go out side of the grounds to secure a good meal, well served, at a moderate price. All tastes will be suited in the services rendered, for there will be places where meals will be served on an elaborate plan to suit the most fastidious taste and where prices will be in proportion to those charged at high class restaurants in large cities. There will be other places where the meals will be cheap, but the food appetizing and healthful and the surroundings clean. There will be restaurants in the beautiful building at the entrance to the Midway, another in a similar building at the entrance to the Stadium, another in the Electric Tower, which will be one of the great centers of interest on the Exposition grounds, and another on the Midway. Refreshments will also be served in the Temple of Music, which may be enjoyed by visitors at the same time that they are listening to the concerts in progress in the auditorium. There will also be a New England kitchen, a German restaurant, a Mexican restaurant, an Italian restaurant and other places where various kinds of refreshments will be served.
EAGLES AT THE EXPOSITION.
Remarkable Decoration For Educational Building at Buffalo.
The building devoted to the Departments of Ethnology and Archaeology at the Pan-American Exposition, which is now approaching completion, will have some remarkable sculptural decorations. Among them will be gigantic figures of eagles and lions, which will be placed upon eight of the 16 panels of the domes. These sculptures in staff will be conspicuous features of the architecture of this beautiful building. Models in clay are first made of the figures, and from them reproductions in staff are cast.
The model of the eagle has just been completed. It is of colossal size. In the model nearly 10,000 pounds of clay have been used, and each bird, when cast in staff, will weigh fully two tons. The sculptured eagle will measure nearly 16 feet in height.
Essays on Pan-American.
A movement to interest the public school teachers and public school pupils in the Pan-American Exposition to be held at Buffalo next summer has been started. It originated in some of the public schools of Pennsylvania and is being taken up elsewhere as the wisdom of the plan becomes apparent. The idea is to have the teachers in the public schools write essays for various occasions of an educational character on the objects and aims of the Exposition and the bearing that such a display will have on the commerce of the world. A similar plan regarding the Paris Exposition was found quite successful and resulted in the attendance of a large corps of teachers at that fair. The plan contemplates also essays by pupils. It is believed that in this way much information can be spread regarding the benefits to be derived from cultivating closer relations with the different countries of this hemisphere and that it would result in greater intelligence among the public school teachers and pupils on this subject, as well as a larger attendance among this class of the population at the Exposition.
West Indians Will Attend.
Louis H. Ayne, United States Consul to Guadalupe, says that in the West Indies the Pan-American Exposition is considered much more important than the Centennial Exposition of 1876 and that hundreds of natives are preparing to come to it.

THE COLLEGE GIRL WHO AFFECTS AN AIR OF SUPERIORITY.
Editorially, in "The Ladies' Home Journal," Edward W. Bok expresses himself vigorously in denunciation of the tendency to introduce a dangerous element of snobbery into education. He notes the prevailing "I know so much" air that is encountered on all sides, and the feeling that a life is being drawn on a so-called educational basis. Mr. Bok contends that "an educational process which sharpens and polishes only a girl's intellect, and teaches her to neglect her heart or soul, is a sorry indication of what an education really stands for and is. The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and snivels of the most repulsive kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how little we know in their opinions are generally the best educated. It is an art which only a few of us learn, to be reticent of our own opinion when every one around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But the girl fresh from her books and college does not always perceive this. She is apt to assume, for example, that people are uneducated if now and again they speak ungrammatically. But she does not know that the most vital truths ever spoken or written, the truths which have done mankind the greatest good, have not always been those which would have borne grammatical dissection.
"Their good lay in what was said rather than in the way in which the sentences were constructed. It is when we are young that we believe that all that is worth knowing is printed in books. When we are older, we find that the deepest truths are never written down. It is not enough for a girl to hold up for herself a standard in grammar or anything else. But she is unwise when she believes that her standard is the one by which she must judge and measure others. She has no right to do so in the first place. And in the second, she is far more apt to be wrong in her deduction than she is to be correct."
GENERAL GRANT'S UNIFORM.
He Disliked to Change a Coat That He Found Comfortable.
General Horner Porter describes the advance on Petersburg in one of his articles in "The Century" on "Campaigning With Grant." General Porter says concerning Grant's attitude toward dress:
The weather had become so warm that the general and most of the staff had ordered thin, dark blue flannel blouses to be sent to them to take the place of the heavy uniform coats which they had been wearing. General Porter's uniform, however, was now tried on. The general's blouse, like the others, was of plain material, single breasted, and had four regular brass buttons in front. It was substantially the coat of an private soldier, with nothing to indicate the rank of an officer except the three gold stars of a lieutenant general on the shoulder straps. He wore at this time a turban white linen collar and a small, black "butterfly" cravat, which was hooked on to his front collar button.
The general, when he put on the blouse, did not take the pains to see whether it fitted him or not; he noticed how it looked, but thought only of the comfort it afforded, and said, "Well, this is a relief," and then added: "I have never taken as much satisfaction as my people in making frequent changes in my outer clothing. I like to put on a suit of clothes when I get up in the morning and wear it until I go to bed, unless I have to make a change in my dress to meet company. I have been in the habit of getting one coat at a time, putting it on and wearing it every day as long as it looked respectable, instead of using a best and a second best. I know that is not the right way to manage, but a comfortable coat seems like an old friend, and I don't like to change it."
The general had also received a pair of high, neatly fitting riding boots, to which he seemed to take a fancy. Thereafter he wore them most of the time in place of his heavy top boots, putting on the latter only when he rode out in wet weather.
The School "Shows Off"
In illustration of the way in which teachers' houses are run, only last week a Chicago teacher tells a story of some of her pupils' "showing off" under her auspices. She had been drilling into them one afternoon the difference in the meaning of the words "taught" and "learned." Over and over again in the presence of a late visitor she had explained the use of each of the words and had given them several examples in which the words were correctly used.
"Now," she said, "I think you have learned your lesson as well as I have taught it to you. Willie, will you give me a sentence with the word 'taught' in it?"
A fair haired rosin on the front seat spoke up promptly:
"I thought it was time for school to let out!"
"No, no! Willie, you may give me an example," she said, turning to a bright girl farther back.
"I thought it was time for home," answered Willie with an air as if she had done exactly the right thing.
And, though she tried several times more, no other form of the word than the variation "I thought" could the teacher get out of her school.—Youth's Companion.

"Peace commission nothing," interrupted the thoughtful man. "The thing that is going to end all war is the fact that they have reached that point in the construction of mammoth cannons where a new national debt is created every time one is discharged."—Chicago Post.

SNOBBERY OF EDUCATION.
The College Girl Who Affects an Air of Superiority.
Editorially, in "The Ladies' Home Journal," Edward W. Bok expresses himself vigorously in denunciation of the tendency to introduce a dangerous element of snobbery into education. He notes the prevailing "I know so much" air that is encountered on all sides, and the feeling that a life is being drawn on a so-called educational basis. Mr. Bok contends that "an educational process which sharpens and polishes only a girl's intellect, and teaches her to neglect her heart or soul, is a sorry indication of what an education really stands for and is. The practice followed by some girls who have been at college of holding their heads above those who have not is a foolish proceeding, and snivels of the most repulsive kind of snobbery. It is never safe for us to assume that we know more than the people around us, whether we are college trained or not. The longer we live in this world the more we become convinced how little we know in their opinions are generally the best educated. It is an art which only a few of us learn, to be reticent of our own opinion when every one around us is expressing his. Yet this is one of the attributes of the well educated. Silence often speaks louder than speech. But the girl fresh from her books and college does not always perceive this. She is apt to assume, for example, that people are uneducated if now and again they speak ungrammatically. But she does not know that the most vital truths ever spoken or written, the truths which have done mankind the greatest good, have not always been those which would have borne grammatical dissection.
"Their good lay in what was said rather than in the way in which the sentences were constructed. It is when we are young that we believe that all that is worth knowing is printed in books. When we are older, we find that the deepest truths are never written down. It is not enough for a girl to hold up for herself a standard in grammar or anything else. But she is unwise when she believes that her standard is the one by which she must judge and measure others. She has no right to do so in the first place. And in the second, she is far more apt to be wrong in her deduction than she is to be correct."
GENERAL GRANT'S UNIFORM.
He Disliked to Change a Coat That He Found Comfortable.
General Horner Porter describes the advance on Petersburg in one of his articles in "The Century" on "Campaigning With Grant." General Porter says concerning Grant's attitude toward dress:
The weather had become so warm that the general and most of the staff had ordered thin, dark blue flannel blouses to be sent to them to take the place of the heavy uniform coats which they had been wearing. General Porter's uniform, however, was now tried on. The general's blouse, like the others, was of plain material, single breasted, and had four regular brass buttons in front. It was substantially the coat of an private soldier, with nothing to indicate the rank of an officer except the three gold stars of a lieutenant general on the shoulder straps. AT DANCING SCHOOL.
The master's old and lean and grim, And the girl is in his knees. And though he says his eyes are dim, The mildest soul he knows. My classmate and bow and turn and bow, I try my best to please. No matter how, there's a frown on his brow, And the girl is in his knees. And he teaches me today. He taught my father long ago. He teaches me today. A thousand small feet, I know, Have slipped on his classmate and bow, My classmate and bow and turn and bow, To the girl in pink and gray. No matter how, there's a frown on his brow, As he teaches me today. But what care I how stern he be If pink-and-gray he kind? Oh, let him frown his best on me If he have a mind. My classmate and bow and turn and bow, My happy eyes are blind To the frown on his brow, no matter how. If pink-and-gray be kind. Oh, let him frown, and frown his fill, I never shall make a mistake. The classmate and bow and turn and bow, To the girl in pink and gray. My classmate and bow and turn and bow, The frown on his brow, no matter how. No matter how, there's a frown on his brow, Today I dance with her. Ah, no, what years have slid away, Since that old classmate's day? They do not dance it now. My classmate and bow and turn and bow, And the master, grim and gray, Has a frown on his brow, and yet somehow The scholars slip away. I sit here in the evening's gloom, And see you, pink-and-gray, Lead children to the dancing school, To the master grim and gray. My classmate and bow and turn and bow, I might have walked today. No matter how, 'twill never be now— All you, sweet pink-and-gray. —H. C. Danner in New York Tribune.
NEW YORK'S SKY LINE.
A Particularly Impressive Sight From River Craft.
Scarcely any other great city in the world has such a foreground, or rather such a foreground, as is furnished to New York by the upper bay and the North river. Even more the river than the bay, for the city presents itself "bows on" to the voyager who approaches it from the Narrows and shows in the southern view a confused mass of erections of various forms and foundations. Even this sight is almost as impressive as it is confusing. But it is only when Governors island and the Battery are cleared that the composition parts of this first view in the approach become more definite. Attached, and that the panorama begins to unfold itself. For a mile and more it reveals a chain of peaks rising above the horizon, itself a five or six story horizon, and struggling or shooting toward the sky. For another mile, for two miles more, the peaks continue to emerge, but they no longer form a chain. Fortunately every visitor from Europe and every visitor from the west must get his first sight of New York from the most impressive point of view, and no visitor of any sensibility from either quarter can fail to be immensely impressed. The inland American who regards the prosperity of the chief part of the country as an index of the national prosperity will exult in these huge evidences of that prosperity, and, surveying the long procession of towers, will hail the American metropolis as Mr. Kipling's colonial hall of the British metropolis.

The Mothers of Kings.
Nearly all the kings and queens of Europe are descended from two sisters, daughters of Duke Louis Rudolph of Brunswick-Wolfenbuttel, who died in 1735, and his wife, Christine Louise, who departed this life in 1777. The elder of the sisters, Princess Elizabeth Christine, subsequent to her conversion to the Catholic church married the prince who afterward became Emperor Charles VI of Germany. Through her daughter, Maria Theresa, she became the ancestor of the house of Hapsburg-Lorraine, Tuscany, Sicily and Modena, and through the marriages of female descendants the reigning families of Portugal, Brazil and Italy, Saxony, the present reigning families of Spain and Bavaria, the Spanish Bourbons and all of the Orleans family. These descendants number, all told, nearly 400. The second sister, Princess Antonette Anne, married her cousin, Duke Ferdinand II of Brunswick-Bevern. They had three daughters and one son. One of the girls is the ancestor of the present royal house of Prussia, while through the marriages of other female descendants she is one of the progenitors of the reigning families of Russia, Leckenburg-Schweinf, Baden and The Netherlands. A second girl is the ancestor of the entire house of Coburg, a third of the reigning families of England, Belgium, Portugal and Hess-Darmstadt. The third girl is the ancestor of the present reigning houses of Denmark, Holstein-Glucksburg, Hesse-Cassel and Greece. The line of the son, the house of Brunswick, became extinct in 1832.—Pittsburg Dispatch.
Tenpins and Tenpin Balls.
Tenpins are made of rock maple and cost $3.50 a set. They formerly cost more, but with a greater demand and increased sales prices have been reduced. A perfectly turned and hand-somely polished rock maple pin is a symmetrical and slightly object. Standing in the window of a dealer in the city is a tenpin of red maple which is beautiful and attracts much attention. And birdseye maple would be a good wood for tenpins, but it costs twice as much as rock maple or more, and the beauty spots would scarcely be visible from the other end of a 70 foot alley.
The regulation tenpin is 15 inches high and 15 inches in circumference at the largest part and 2 1/2 inches in diameter at the base. Pins are sometimes made shorter and sometimes longer and bigger for family use, so that they may be knocked down more easily, but 15 inches is the regulation height. Tenpin balls are sometimes made of rosewood, sometimes of maple, but lignum vitae is the best wood for tenpin balls.
Bowling is more popular now in this country than ever before. Up to about 15 years ago the majority of bowlers here were Germans. Now bowling alleys are provided in many clubs, and there are more public and more private alleys than ever, especially at seashore and country resorts, where there are to be found alleys elaborately fitted up with fine woods.—New York Sun.

MINOT'S LEDGE LIGHTHOUSE.
The First One Was Swept Away With All Its Occupants.
Lighthouses form the subject of an article in St. Nicholas, written by Lieutenant John M. Elliott, U. S. N., and entitled "The Lights That Guide in the Night." Lieutenant Elliott says:
The first lighthouse on Minot's Ledge was built in 1848. It was an octagonal tower resting on the tops of eight wrought iron piles 8 inches in diameter and 60 feet high, with their bases sunk 6 feet in the rock. These piles were braced together in many ways, and as they offered less surface to the waves than a solid structure, this lighthouse was considered by all authorities upon the subject to be exceptionally strong.
Its great test came in April, 1851. On the 14th of that month, two keepers being in the lighthouse, an easterly gale set in, steadily increasing in force. People on shore, and no doubt the keepers themselves, watched the heavy seas sweep harmlessly through the network of piles beneath the house, and feared no harm. On the 15th, however, the wind and sea had greatly increased, and the waves were flung higher and higher toward that tower in the air. Yet all thought they surely could not reach 60 feet above the ledge.
That night was one of keen anxiety, for the gale still increased, and all through the faithful keepers were at their posts, for the light burned brightly. On Wednesday, the 16th, the gale had become a hurricane, and when at times the tower could be seen through the mists and sea drift, it seemed to bend to the shock of the waves. At 4 o'clock that afternoon an ominous prod of the fury of the waves on Minot's Ledge reached the shore—a platform which had been built between the piles only seven feet below the floor of the keepers' room. The raging seas, then, were leaping 50 feet in the air. Would they reach 10 feet higher, for it so, the house and the keepers were doomed? Nervous, when darkness set in the light shone out as brilliantly as ever. But the gale seemed, if possible, then to increase. What agony those two men must have suffered! How that dreadful noise must have swayed in the irresistible hurricane, and tribulation at each crashing sea! The poor unfortunate must have known that if those seas, leaping always higher and higher, ever reached their house, it would be hurled down into the sea, and they would be hurled with it beneath the waves. To those hapless, terrified watchers the entombing sea came at last. At 1 o'clock in the morning the lighthouse bell was heard by those on shore to give a mournful clang, and the light was extinguished. It was the funeral knell of two patient heroes.
Next day there remained on the rock only eight jagged iron stumps.
How the Aged Should Live.
Every person who advances in life should carefully examine his whole method of life and personal habits and should adapt his mode of living to the peculiarities of his individual case. One of the first and most important questions to consider is that of food. The teeth in old age are frequently lost, and unless under exceptional circumstances they should be replaced by artificial ones, for mastication is a most vital point and is more necessary in the case of the old than the young, for in the former the digestive powers are apt to fail. Very many old people are injured by the use of food in excessive quantities. But little exercise can be taken. All growth has ceased, and the bodily furnace which keeps heat is able to destroy but little food fuel. It is perhaps not universally recognized that in numerous cases death is finally due to an absolute failure on the part of the body to keep itself warm. In the old the heat making functions are exceedingly low, and hence it is that few old people are comfortable in a room where the temperature is under 75 or 80 degrees. It is especially important, therefore, that an abundance of clothes be worn by old people.
Another vital point in the treatment of the aged is protection, and especially protection against strain of any vital organ. An old man exposes himself to inclement weather, and especially to a high wind, with the result that the blood is driven from the surface of the body upon the internal organs, and the unbalanced movements of respiration which aid in forcing the blood out of these organs are checked. What is true in regard to the ordinary healthy conditions of the old man is more particularly true in regard to the diseases of the old. Medicines that are too violent in their action cannot be taken. At the same time when possible it is most essential to arrest at once any incipient disorder in old persons.—New York Ledger.
The Japanese Spaniel.
The most valuable of small dogs is the Japanese spaniel. A dog a year old, weighing 3 1/2 pounds, is worth $200. The dogs seldom weigh less than 3 1/2 pounds, but as they decrease in weight they increase in value. A three pound spaniel is worth much more than one weighing 3 1/2 pounds and one weighing 2 1/2 or 2 3/4 pounds very much more. Japanese spaniels have been sold for as much as $500.
There are large Japanese spaniels that are not imported and have no special value. The small dogs are very rare and their rarity doubtless adds considerably to their value, but they are highly prized otherwise. They are good natured and lively little creatures. Their markings are black and white and yellow and some dogs are marked with all three colors.—New York Sun.
Premature Burial.
Colonel E. P. Vollum and Mr. Tebb have written a book on the subject of premature burial and declare they have not exaggerated the case. They say it would be impossible to record all the cases collected in a volume of 400 pages. Dr. Trautmann is said to have collected 700 cases, and Dr. L. Guin, whose work, entitled "Danger des Inhumations," has passed through several editions, has collected 8,318 cases.

That which follows is the experience of a resident of Portsmouth. Incredulity cannot exist about the statement because it can easily be investigated.
Mr. Thomas Eutaw, city marshal, says: "I was never troubled very much with my kidneys, but I had a very sharp attack of lameness of the back and pains across the loins. At the time I got Doan's Kidney Pills I was suffering much distress. It hurt me to take any sudden movement and sharp twinges seized me in the soles of the back when rising from a chair. I took but a few doses when I found they were helping me and before I had finished the whole box I was quite free from pain. I have had no trouble since."

Those British cabinet portfolios are rather snug berths. They carry salaries of about $25,000 a year.

Apparently a good many of the fighting Boers have not heard the election returns from the Dominion of Canada.

Senator Scott stated the truth when he said: "We have protected almost everything except our shipping, and now it seems to me the time has come to protect that."

In view of the emphatic voice of the people, the democrats in congress will hardly feel justified in opposing at the coming session legislation for the proper increase of our regular army.

Suppose the Chinese government does agree to behold the leading Boxers—how will the allies know that the offenders have not sent their hired men to the execution? All Celestials look pretty much alike.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst of New York recently defined his ideal newspaper. The number of metropolitan journals which are claiming that they fulfill his conditions is almost equal to the number published there.

One wonders what would have happened had a jealous woman not exposed the Kentucky bank teller. He had carried off the capital of the bank several times over, and still nobody had any suspicion. Would he have carried off the directors also?

The re-election of President McKinley by a larger majority in the electoral college than he received in 1896, also exploded the democratic presumption, freely exploited during the campaign, that the voters of foreign birth would be hostile to the government.

One of the sins attributed to Mr. Cleveland by the present democratic leaders is wrecking the party; but, whether he did or did not, at least it must be owned that as a party wrecker Mr. Bryan is so much Mr. Cleveland's superior as to be in a class by himself.

The secretary of the navy dismissed from the naval academy last week, on recommendation of the superintendent, a cadet found guilty of "roguing," which is the slang for dishonesty in work, in this case the copying as his own of a theme written by another cadet, and of falsehood. Fifty six members of his class petitioned the secretary to exercise clemency, and are all placed in the third conduct grade. For insubordination, which permits them to have liberty but once in four weeks. This is discipline that will be apt to produce a desired effect.

It is only a short-sighted policy that would modify our relationship toward Canada in accordance with the trifling apparent advantages of the hour. There is a long future ahead, during which the Canadians will be our near neighbors in the occupancy of this wondrous continent. Canada needs American capital and American young men of brains and energy. American capital and American young men of brains and energy need Canada—that is, they need that wealth of opportunity that Canada presents and will continue to present for many years to come.

An effort is being made to clear the way for a resumption of the negotiations of the Anglo-American commission by settling the Alaskan boundary dispute aside for direct agreement between the two governments. This is a wise plan. The elections of both countries have been held and there is no political buncombe to interfere on either side for the moment. The commission had made some progress toward the settlement of minor questions, such as the Maine boundary, fisheries regulations and immigration, before the Alaskan boundary dispute threatened a rupture. These questions might now be taken up and settled. The Bering sea controversy and the protection of the fur seals is one of the most important and urgent questions before the commission. There is no reason why it should not be taken up and determined, for if approached fairly there is nothing terribly difficult about it.

A GOOD COMBINATION.

Some twenty-five years ago a colored glee club emanated from what is now the M. S. school of colored schools, Fisk University, and styling themselves the Nashville students, started en route for the purpose of raising funds with which to continue their college course. Their sweet voices, delightful songs and melodious whistles, their success was almost phenomenal and the tour originally intended for a few weeks lengthened out into years and with their popularity increased. This season the enterprising minstrel magistrates Rusco & Holland have induced them to enter the minstrel field for the first time and they will be seen at Music hall next Saturday evening allied with Gideon's Big Minstrel Carnival in a program of modern minstrelsy, excelling anything the public has ever before been treated to. The two companies travel in a train of specially built Pullmans and give an enormous street pageant daily, in which may be seen two bands, drum corps, mounted buglers and acrobats, ponies, thoroughbred Kentucky horses and some late styles of boulevard stables. The horses and vehicles used are carried by the company.

SPORTING NOTES.

New Hampshire college versus Unity eleven at the South-end park today.

After the Princeton game Yale men in New York were offering 2 to 1 on the Harvard game.

There is a strong sentiment at Yale toward giving Al Sharpe a chance to bind the line next Saturday.

Yale beat Harvard, Princeton and Philadelphia in the fifth annual inter-collegiate gun shoot at Princeton Saturday.

The Dover football team will line up against the New Hampshire college eleven at Durham next Saturday afternoon.

Though Bowdoin and Bates will not meet this year to settle the championship of Maine, it is the general opinion that Bowdoin has the better team.

Perley Weeks has been elected captain of the Phillips Andover football eleven. Dartmouth once had a Perley Weeks, who was a very clever athlete.

Unity and New Hampshire college will fight it out on the South End gridiron this afternoon. A clean, fast game is assured, which every lover of football should see.

Dover and Salmon Falls eleven played a tie game, with a score of 6 to 6, at Dover Saturday. It is but fair to state, however, that Dover was without the services of Yates and Lucia behind the line.

Fifteen graduates of Yale university have decided to see the great football game, Saturday, in a unique manner. They have chartered a balloon and will sit in mid air during the progress of the game, looking down on the struggling warriors of their Alma Mater and of Harvard. They will, therefore, have a splendid bird's-eye view of the game.

Everything is in readiness for carrying on a large business during the winter months, the freight sheds being piled high with goods awaiting shipment and the big grain elevator is so full that it can hold no more.

In the Portland municipal court, Saturday, there was an interesting short lobster case. Warden Dow seized four barrels of lobsters, Oct. 25, and alleged that the lot contained forty-eight short lobsters. In court Frank P. McIntire of Orr's Island, appeared as claimant. Several witnesses from Orr's Island gave their testimony, as well as Warden Gardner and others. At the close of the hearing Judge Hill rendered judgment for the claimant.

LOST AT SEA.

William Smith, Who Fished Out of Portsmouth for Past Eleven Years.

The sad news has been sent to this city of the loss at sea of William Smith of the fishing schooner Ames Cutter, while fishing off the coast of Gloucester on Monday. For the past ten or eleven years Smith has fished out of this port and is well-known by every fisherman here. Smith was 37 years old, unmarried, and resided at 364 Main street, Gloucester.

The vessel was fishing about nine miles off shore, and early Monday morning the crew were sent to attend their trawls. It was blowing a strong breeze at the time and a signal was set for the dories to come on board. The vessel was under way and sailing around among the dories which contained but one man each.

After searching for the dories some time, the one that Smith was in could not be found, but the trawl tub, one oar and other paraphernalia were picked up. This led Capt. Lyle of the Cutter and his crew to believe that the dory that Smith was in became capsized and its occupant drowned. After vainly searching, the vessel returned to port that night.

He Can't Believe It.

He's blowing with all his might and can barely stir the recording hand from zero. There's many a big, healthy looking man who is weak in the lungs. Probably half or two-thirds of his lung surface barely knows the contact of oxygen. He's the kind of man, who, when a cough attacks him, goes galloping down the road toward consumption. Many such a man has found strength and healing for weak lungs and tissues incured by coughing and drained by hemorrhages, in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The healing power of this medicine in pulmonary diseases seems little short of marvelous at times, so extreme are the conditions which it cures. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol, and no narcotics.

"When I started to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mr. A. P. Novotny, of New York, N. Y., Box 1437, "I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and everybody cautioned me and warned me concerning it. I was losing weight rapidly, was very pale and had no appetite, whatever. Now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all, have gained eight pounds in weight, have recovered my healthy color, and my appetite is enormous. I can recommend your medicine to everybody who may be in need of the same, as it is a sure cure."

Mental Depression

is a frequent and natural result of physical weakness. One of the most distressing of ailments is stomach trouble, and thousands might profit by the experience of Mrs. Amelia Allen, of Ohio, N. Y.

"For five or six years I was afflicted with nervous dyspepsia, was compelled to diet myself rigidly and could scarcely keep anything on my stomach. Palpitation of the heart set in and I soon became so thin and weak that I was a mere shadow. I was so discouraged that I had no faith in any doctor or medicine. When a friend, Mrs. George Mott, recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I had no idea of resting any benefit from them. I tried them, however, and to-day I am well, have regained my weight, and am strong and vigorous."

Altogether I took them about a year and a half and was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

An Easy Victim.

Filps is back from Chicago and the experience following is gradually gaining circulation among his friends. Filps is one of those men for whom flies are supposed to have no affinity. He knows the ins and outs of the world. He rather likes to encounter the people who live by their wits and show them that he can beat their many games.

Filps walked into one of the big hotels of the Brezzy City, shook hands with the clerk as an old acquaintance, wrote his name with an extra flourish, had a room assigned him and was half way to the door when he was stopped by a fine looking man with extended hand. He called Filps by name, asked after several Detroit people and showed a disposition to keep up talk. But Filps declined to thaw out, winked at the clerk and congratulated himself that he knew a bunko artist when he saw the article.

The stranger passed through to the bar and Filps was at once accosted by a large, well dressed, rather long haired young fellow. "Did that man try his game on you?" was the salutation. "Out our way he wouldn't last long. But it's different here. Let's follow him and see if we can't land him."

"Oh, what's the use. It isn't worth the time," and Filps looked superior. Then the two fell into conversation and Filps was delightedly entertained by the stories of the westerner. At length they went out together just to look about. In the morning Filps walked up in one chair while his foot occupied another. It was a dingy place in a dingy neighborhood. He dived for his watch to ascertain the time. It was not there. He felt for his money. It must have gone with his watch. He hurried to the hotel. There he met the first stranger of the night before, an old Detroit boy. He lent Filps what he needed.—Detroit Free Press.

Curry the Farm Horses.

Horses on the farm do not have the sleek look that horses in the city livery have. Neither will they accomplish so much work. The difference is partly owing to the fact that the horse in the city has a large proportion of grain, while the farm horse, even while working, gets most of his nutrition from hay. But grooming has also a great deal to do with the superior sleekness of the city horse's coat. The currying is not so much used as it should be on farm horses.

We know, says The Prince Edward Island Agriculturist, many places where the brush and currycomb are seldom used, except while the horse is shedding his coat. But at any time it promotes the secretion of oil, which moistens the coat and makes it shine. A well groomed horse is usually well fed. But if the grooming were thoroughly done at least once a day, the horse would keep in good condition with less food than it now receives.

Good grooming undoubtedly aids digestion, as rubbing the body promotes digestion in people, and is an excellent substitute for exercise for those who do little muscular work.

The Old Scheme.

Just as the physicians who had been in consultation seemed about to reach an agreement the patient died.

"Fine subject," said one of the physicians as they gathered about the bed.

"Splendid," echoed another. "Seems too bad to waste it by burial."

"Why should we?" asked the third. "All we have to do is to get up a violent dispute as to the real cause of death in order to get a chance to discuss it."

And so they worked the old scheme again.—Chicago Post.

Cause For the Condition.

"You don't shine so brilliantly as of yore," remarked the oil.

"No," said the wick, "I have been turned down by Miss Maud because that young Simpleton is coming."—Brooklyn Life.

Napoleon's Break.

After the expulsion of Louis Philippe in 1848 Napoleon let several months go by before offering himself as a candidate for the chamber. He was elected and presented himself while the law decreeing his exile was still in force. One of the deputies protested against his taking his seat. Louis Napoleon arose, hesitated, bungled and sat down without having been able to address the assembly. "After that," said the objecting deputy, "I withdrew my objection."

In some of the western states an effort is being made to induce the people to do their Christmas shopping as early as possible in order to lighten the labors of the clerks in the stores which have such an extensive holiday trade. The argument is advanced that not only is the work of the sales women made easier by the early shopping which presents a rush at the final end of the holiday season but that the purchasers are greatly benefited by avoiding a crush.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

Ninety-Ninth Annual Now in Session in Concord, This Week.

The ninety ninth annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in the diocese of New Hampshire was opened Tuesday afternoon in St. Paul's church, Concord, and there was a large attendance of the clergy and laity. The attendance, however, was not as large as the Right Rev. W. W. Niles, bishop of the diocese, would like to have seen.

The most important part of the convention is held today, when the annual address is to be delivered by the bishop and announcements relative to the election of officers and the appointment of various committees are to be made.

Through error it has been generally understood that this was the 100th annual convention, or sinod, as it is termed in Canada, but the fact is that it is the 100th meeting, but not the annual meeting of that number. The mistake, the bishop explains, happened like this: Two meetings were held in one year and each was erroneously called annual. The 100th annual meeting is an event of next year.

Among the clergymen present are the Rev. Henry Emerson Hovey, rector of St. John's, this city and the Rev. Charles LeV. Brine, rector of Christ church and the Rev. Charles A. Morrill of Portsmouth.

Among the receipts for the year the following was reported from churches in his vicinity:
Portsmouth, St. John's $33.00
Portsmouth, Christ, 70 00
Rye, St. Andrew's by the Sea, 42.16

A BREEZY TIME.

The piece presented at Music hall on Tuesday evening, to a goodly sized audience, served its purpose satisfactorily. A Breezy Time is intended to make people laugh and in this it is successful. The company numbered some pretty clever players and the performance, as a whole, was well received. The company's band gave a half-hour's concert in front of the theatre before the entertainment commenced.

MECHAN-KELLEY.

Popular Young Couple Wedded at the Catholic Church Today.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception at half past seven o'clock this morning, occurred the marriage of Miss Katherine Kelley, of Foxboro, Mass., cashier at the Boston & Maine railroad passenger station restaurant in this city and Mr. William H. Meehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Meehan of Hanover street, this city, and one of the popular clerks at Ham's cafe on High street.

There was a very large gathering of the friends of the young couple at the church. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Joseph Creeden, the assistant pastor of the church.

The bride was handsomely attired in white silk muslin over silk, en train, with trimmings of lace. She wore a veil caught up with lilies of the valley and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Bernadette McCourt, who was dressed in blue silk muslin, with trimmings of black velvet and lace and wore a picture hat of black chiffon.

The best man was Mr. Cornelius Leary.

Following the ceremony at the church, there was a happy wedding breakfast at the home of the groom's parents on Hanover street.

Mr. and Mrs. Meehan left on the eleven o'clock train for a wedding trip to New York.

The large surrounding of young friends in this vicinity extend the heartiest of hope for the health and happiness of the couple. The bride, since her residence in Portsmouth has won the deserved respect of a wide circle and the groom is a most agreeable young gentleman among his associates.

REQUEST OF GEN. PORTER.

Doesn't Want a Statue of Himself Until He Is Dead.

Gen. Fitz John Porter, U. S. A., retired, has recently written to Mayor McIntire asking that the city of Portsmouth do nothing toward carrying into effect the will of the late R. H. Eddy to have an equestrian statue of Porter erected in this city until after his (Porter's) decease, and asking that the statue, when erected, shall be placed in Flaven park, a portion of which embraces the site of Gen. Porter's birth place, the old Livermore mansion.

Mayor McIntire answered that the letter of Gen. Porter would be placed on file, and that his wishes in the matter would undoubtedly be respected by the city authorities.

In the meantime no one here has been officially notified of the bequest of Mr. Eddy, which, it is understood, became available upon the decease of his widow, but this will probably come in due course.

TO IMPROVE THE CHANNEL

A glance at our despatches this morning will show that Rear Admiral Endicott, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, recommends in his annual report the improvement of the channel connecting the navy yard here with the sea. This means, of course, the Narrows, better known by a name as expressive, but less acceptable to refined ears. Such an official recommendation ought to result in a practical betterment of this part of the harbor, and probably will.

POLICE COURT.

One of the Unfortunates Was a Woman and Sentence Was Suspended.

There were three unfortunates to face Judge Adams in police court this morning. One was a woman, Mrs. Mary Costley. Her husband appeared against her. She was arrested in the yard of her home on Hancock street and was totally helpless. She told the court that she was sick and her husband got her the liquor that laid her out. She was sobbing so that the court could not tell whether she pleaded guilty or not. She pleaded so hard for a suspended sentence that Judge Adams placed ninety days at Brentwood on file.

John Reynolds, who was drunk on Daniel street, got a fine of $3 and costs of $5 36. He will go up.

Albion Hoyt, an able bodied fellow who has passed a greater part of the past two years at Brentwood, pleaded guilty to drunkenness on Market square. Judge Adams thought he was a hopeless case and gave him the limit of six months at the county farm, where the unfortunate fellow is of great help at the institution and does work that otherwise a man would have to be hired to do.

PITY AND BEAUTY

The most beautiful thing, in the world, is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain.

The dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear. It is fat that is gone; gone with it, comfort and color and curve, all but pity and love.

The little one gets no fat from her food: has had none for weeks: she is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers. She is starving for fat; it is death; be quick!

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is the fat she can take. It will save her.

We'll send you a little to try if you like. SCOTT & BOWNE, 419 Pearl street, New York.
